The New York is the largest of the ships and is an armored cruiser of 8,200 tons. From this the ships range in size down to the Montgomery, 2,094 ton cruiser. The Columbia and Minne apolis are the swiftest of the fleet, hav ing a treat tran record of 23 knots. The New York has a record of 21 knots. Besides these vessels there are three of our ships in Asiatic waters by this time. Another is on its way to Honolulu, while the stanch little Castine is traveling as fast as steam can carry her by way of the Cape of Good Eope to Mozambique to lock out for American interests in Madagascar. The gulf fleet will craise about the galf waters till warm weather, then will come north for the summer. The ships will practice evolutions and maneuvers in company, such as are so famous among the war alms of Europe and such as resulted in the frightful disaster with the British Camperdown a few years ago in the Mediterranean. It is to be hoped we shall have no Camperdown accideats with our gulf floot. The commander of the gulf squadron is Admiral Meade. The ships will be at Bluefield: glistering gans and gallant crows.

CONVIVIAL CALEDONIA.

Some Curious Facts About the Inns and Hotels of Scotland.

Mr. Robert Kempt has gathered together many interesting historical items and quaint anecdotes about the ions and hotels of Scotland. It must be confossed the historical side begins very late, for in olden days inns were practically unknown over the border, travelers being received in private houses as guests. Consequently there is no record of such ancient hostelries as the Tabard in Southwark, the Mermaid in Bread street or the Blue Boar in Eastcheap

When Defoe went to Scotland, he had difficulty in finding an inneat Abordeen, and this in spite of a royal edict issued by James I in 1424, to the effect that in all borough towns where there was considerable traffic hostelries should be established, but these institutions did not flourish till very much later. Mr. Kempt gives some amusing information as to the panns and penalties enacted in the ifteenth and seventeenth centuries regarding the hours of closing, drunkenness, etc. The inns of Aberdeen are accorded a whole chapter, for there is much to say about those of the last century. They practically formed open clubs for the wits and learned men of the hospitable city Over very modest repasts and pota tions grand symposia were held. The philosophers lived low, out thought and spoke high
Dr. Johnson seems to have appre ciated the Aberdeen inns. He found them almost as congenial as his haunts in Fleet street and certainly far better than the Scottish houses of entertainment. Among other in teresting items of information. Mr Kempt points out that whisky is comparatively modern beverage, and that in olden days charet was almosi as much drank as ale. The Regent Albany is supposed to have made exempt from any penalty for breaking chiret popular. In 1480 red Gascony wine sold in Aberdeen at sixpence pint and later on claret and port wine could be had at eighteen pence e bottle. Indeed claret and port in those early days could be procured cheaper in Sectiond than in most parts of England.

bout How the Church Debt Was Lifted by a Mystericias Stranger. "You know," sald Deacon Gozzle, 'I'd often heard of men going away from their native tillage to the city and getting rich and finally coming back to settle and building a fine house, or building a house and coming there to spend their summers, or giving the town a library, or building a new church or a schoolhouse, or doing something good that show ol that their heart was in the old town. But the quedrest thing of that in good medicine in the early spring is to be undoubted, but many people neglect taking any until the approach of warmer weather, when they wilt like a tender flower in the hots was. Something must be done to purity the blood, overcome that three feeling and give necessary strength. Vacation is earnestly longed for, but many weeks, perhaps months must clapse before rest can be indulged in. To impart strength, and to give a feeling of bealth and vigor throughout the system, there is nothing equal to Hood's Sareaparilla. It seems perfectly adapted to overcome that prostration caused by change of season, climate or life, and while it tones and sustains the system. The purifies a difference of the wonderful cures effecting the summer, and more people have heard of it, my chest and left arm cease. Passenger Trains on the P., Ft. W. & C. and C. & E. Laid Out. Frains Laid Out in Snow Drifts on the Divisions-Bookl Eastern Division Slightly Impaired.

Railroad traffic between Lima and New York city on both the C. & E. and P., Ft. W. & C. is very greatly impaired especially on the divisions east of Kent and Pittsburg.

Since early yesterday morning the blizzard has raged. It was accompanied with keep, cutting winds and fine sand-like snow forming drifts upon the track from three to ten feetleep, through which the trains could not force themselves and are consequently tied up.

this morning.
Since about noon yesterday the cast bound trains have all stopped at Jamestown, where through passengers are compelied to wait until the blockades are cleared. Between Lima and Chicago the trainmen on both the C. & E. and P. Pt. W. & C. have experienced considerable trouble on account of snow called and after they had dressed the drifts but no trains have been en-wound the injured man was conveyed tirely snow bound. Trains Nos. 8 and 14 on the C. & E. were each an hour and forty minutes late last night, but to-day the east-bound trains on both roads were about on time. * The west-bound limited on the P., Ft. W. & C. was snow bound east of Pittsburg last night and all through trains were into yesterday afterneon and last night. A Big Cypress Tree. We started at 8:30 o'clock, determining to take on odd way the big cypress of Tula which is so large that it is worthy to be ranked above the big trees of California. We found it in the inclosure of the parish thurch. There is no doubt that the latter was built in that place because of the tree, for which the Indians feel great veneration. It is precisely of the same kind as the trees of Chapultonec, but the largest there is only 40 feet in circumference, while this one is, by recent measurement, 152 feet 4 inches. There is another difference, and a very marked one, and this is the tendency to a flattening of the lower and larger branches and of the peculiar buttresses which the trunk throws out. are rounded, is very striking. The tenuls is not like an ordinary one, but resembles a buttressed wall, so that the two diameters vary enormously. height must be less than 200 feet, making the appearance in a photograph al most dwarfish. The spread of the branches from north to south is gigan-tic, and the effect of light and shade is entrancing to the artist. There are colmies of lizards and of various birds in he different departments of the trunk and branches, and upon the green dome of the top were a group of buzzards that croaked without intermission during our Bandelaire's really original character would have been more interesting had he not made such obvious efforts to call attention to it. One Sunday. the day my friends are kind enough to visit me, long after our first interview, he came to see me with his hair painted green. I pretended not to notice it. He stood and looked at himself in front of the mirror, stroke ed his hair with his hand and did his morning. He had fallen out of bed dar-ing the night and was frozen to death best to attract my attention.

At last, unable any longer to control himself, he said, "Do you see nothing extraordinary in my appearance?" "No." "But my hair is dyed green, and that is unusual." I answered: "Everybody's hair is more or less green. Now, if your hair were sky blue. I might perhaps be astonished. But one may see green hair under many a hat in Paris." He took his departure very soon afterward, and meeting a friend of mine in the courtvard he said to him: "I recommend you not to go and see Du Camp today. He is in a vile temper!" - "Literary Recollections of Maxime du Camp.

Such premium is to be allowed to the government upon the bonds as to fix the government upon the bonds as to fix the government upon the amount of gold realized at the rate of three and three fourths per cent per amount. At least one just of the gold to be obtained is to be supplied form alroad which is a very important and involvable feature of the transaction.

constipated he uses the gentle tion. The privilege is especially felsewed to the government to substitute at pur within 10 days from this date in lieu of the 4 per cent coin bonds, other bonds in terms parable in gold and bearing only 3 per cent interest if the issue of the same should in the meantime be antionized by the congress. nourishes and stimulates the body and brain. It restores health, strength, energy and vitality, and is the congress.

The arrangements thus completed The arrangements thus completed, which, after careful inquiry, appears in present eleminatances, and considering all the objects desired to be the best attainable, develops such a difference in the estimation of investors between bonds inside psyable in gold in favor of the latter as is represented by three-tourths of a cent in annual interest. In the agreement just concluded the annual saving in Interest to the povernment, if 3 per cent gold bonds should be substituted by 4 per cent coln bands they have the unfulleger reserved, would 1-25-1m bonds under the privilege reserved, would be $500,159, amounting in 90 years, or at the maturity of the coin bonds, to $10,174,

Of course there should never be a floult Or course there shall a have not a position in any quarter as to the redemption in gold of the bonds of the government which are made payable in coin. Therefore the discrimitation in the judgment of investors between our bond abligations payable in coin and those specifically made mountly in middle vower significant. It is payable in oan and those specificary fisher payable in gold is very significant. It is hardly necessary to suggest that, whatever may be our views on the subject, the sentiment or preferences of those with whom we must negotiate in disposing of our bonds for gold are not subject to our distriction.

Miss Allec Azesz.

An Arab princess, Miss Alice Azecz, who is to enter the Harvard annex this fall, says that in her own country men. are not allowed to write until they canadd a long chain of titles to their names. Women are not expected to write for publication, but she hopes to secure this privilege when she has obtained the ticles from American and English universities. Then she expects to found a magnificent library which will become a monument to her father. She then proposes to give her life to the amelioration of the women of her race in the orient, and the public library is to become a part of the school system of the country. Miss Azecz has been living in retirement in Brooklyn for some time. She is only 19 years of age, but understands the Arabian, Assyrian, Greeian, Latin, French, German and English languages. Specimens of her needle-work adorn the shelves of the Matropolitan Museum of Art in New York and the Peabody museum at Cambridge, Mass.

Good Speaking.

This good advice to public speakers s given by Dr. J. M.
